Do you have a fantastic product or service you want to share?

Partner with me here at Homestead Honey. Homestead Honey has a growing population of readers who are passionate about Homesteading, Gardening, Sustainable Living, Homeschooling, Off-grid Living, and Embracing your Dreams. Our readers are the type of people who choose to support small businesses, rather than shop at Big Box stores. They want quality products and services from companies that they feel good about supporting.

That’s where you come in. As a small business owner, you are likely looking for big impact on a small budget. You’ve identified your ideal customer, and would love to share your product with people who share your passion for simple, yet radical living. You want customers who LOVE your product, who will tell their friends about your services, and who will visit your company again, and again, and again!
Hello!
I'm Teri Page, author of Homestead Honey

About a year ago, my family packed up our Oregon homestead of 13 years, and moved to Northeast Missouri, where we are building a radical homestead on 10 acres of raw land. We are creating and cultivating organic gardens and planting food forests while we camp on the land, building an off-grid, 350 square foot home.

The decision to move to Missouri and start a homestead from scratch came from a strong desire to live in close community with friends, to own a piece of land on which we can grow our own food and live in harmony with nature, and most importantly, to live simply and without debt, so we can spend more time as a family, doing what we love.

What I love is gardening, knitting, Waldorf-inspired homeschooling, musical theater, dance, good food, backpacking, and spending time with my husband and two little ones, ages 3 and 6.
Homestead Honey is a homestead lifestyle blog that captures the beauty and challenges of building, and living on an off-grid homestead with young children.

I share stories, how-to's, and resources that inspire a more creative, abundant, and radical life. Regular features include Building a Tiny Home, Out the Front Door, and In the Garden. I also write about Waldorf-inspired homeschooling, knitting, whole foods, and homestead living. My writing has also been featured in the popular online magazines From Scratch and Rhythm of the Home.

My readers are homesteaders, people passionate about simple and sustainable living, and those wanting to take a leap toward their own homestead dream.
Site Stats

- Homestead Honey has a growing audience of engaged readers
- 12,728 Page Views per month (Average over 3 months as of December 10, 2013)
- 3821 Unique Visitors
- 372 Subscribers

- 2027 Facebook Followers
- 244 Pinterest Followers
Homestead Honey’s sponsorship program puts YOU, the small business owner, in the spotlight.

When you place a 150 x 150 px sidebar ad, we amplify your reach by highlighting your product or service in the following ways.

- Spotlight your business, along with our other sponsors, at the beginning of each month with a short paragraph that describes your company and a link to your website or store.
- Should you desire, we will host a giveaway of a product of your choice. We also offer the opportunity for an interview or discount code to accompany your giveaway.
- We will also promote your company once per purchase month on each of our social media outlets: Facebook, Google+, and Pinterest.
- 150 x 150 Ads are currently offered at a "Launch Special" rate of $10 per month, up to 6 months.

Are you ready to Begin your sponsorship with Homestead Honey?
Contact teri@homestead-honey.com